File information: Version 1.0 Release Date: January 8th, 2007 File size 1.6 MB (on a USB stick). When run from a CD it will take approx. 3MB on a CD. Instructions are included on disc. Import rules are: - Minimum install size 512kb - Maximum install size 5mb - On first run You must select to apply or not - Selecting Apply will resize the Today 2000 icon and the file size limit. The original release was provided here: How it works: You install the software to a system tray icon or to a USB thumb drive. You double-click on the icon to open Today 2000 with minimal nag screen. You can apply a custom time zone in the first menu or use the Automatic Clock menu to allow Today 2000 to automatically locate your system time zone. If the Time Zone is on "Auto" or "Use my time zone" dates less than 256 change the settings as necessary to match your time zone. This may take some manual testing to set up. When you open Today 2000 for the first time you will be asked to select either Installation or Custom. The install will be available in a menu where you can select between USB or CD Install. Custom will allow you to select (after installation) where to install the software. If you choose to install the software you will also be asked where to install it. Custom allows you to specify the destination folder and you can install Today 2000 to either the default Windows folder or to a USB thumb drive. If you install Today 2000 to a USB thumb 09e8f5149f

Today 2000

Do you ever wish there was a small button in the system tray to change the day, month, year, and time? You don't have to look at the date, as each day, month, and year is right there in the system tray at the bottom right hand side, and the time is right above it. So how did Microsoft manage to leave this feature out of the System Date and Time utility and the Control Panel? Well, today is the day! Today 2000 gets to the bottom of that answer. Today 2000 adds what Microsoft left out to the system tray. Today 2000 is a small program that adds not only a date and time, but also a small calendar to your Windows system tray. Today 2000 does not require any special operating system, nor does it require you to have changed your system clock. Today 2000 is a simple, yet useful tool. No bells and whistles, no nagging, no menus, just a simple time and date calculator. It was designed to take minimal resources, yet still hold up against the latest viruses. Today 2000 looks great, it's fast, and it's easy to use. If you want to be able to just glance at your computer screen and instantly know what today's date is, then TODAY 2000 is for you. =====for Windows 10 Users===== Microsoft Edge will be set by default to update from Firefox to Internet Explorer 11 (IE 11). As far as I am concerned, it is absolutely wrong that this change is occurring. When I look at you at the end of today, I will be ashamed of your lack of ethics and your decision to exchange the best browser on the planet, Mozilla Firefox, for the worst browser on the planet, Internet Explorer. Internet Explorer sucks. If you were creating a browser and you needed to get users to switch, I would be against you. =====for Windows 7 Users===== Power Button Changes from Log On/Off to Shut Down/Restart Windows 7 has a feature that appears the Windows 7 Power Button has changed to restarting/shutting down your computer instead of Log On/Off/Sleep/Hibernate. If you can find a way to reinstall the "Hardware and Sound" driver and the "Microsoft Graphic" driver, that will get you back into the Log On to your computer screen and the ability to hibernate and sleep. If you do not find either of those you will have to restart and leave to
